

Reflective Writing

A Morning of Poetry-Inspired Personal Discovery

The words of nature-loving poets such as Mary Oliver can be a starting point for our own exploration. Through suggested prompts and quiet time for reflection, we'll slow down, pay attention, and consider what their words might help us discover about ourselves and our lives.

Bring a journal or something you enjoy writing in. You'll have time to reflect privately, and you won't be asked to share what you write.
